For immediate release

Milwaukee—August 20, 2010—Heartland Advisors, Inc., an investment management firm dedicated to value investing, has been recognized (again!) as a “Top Milwaukee Workplace” by The Business Journal. The firm is one of 29 small companies with less than 100 employees to receive this recognition. The award honors the area’s most creative and forward-thinking businesses with employees who love coming to work every day and who believe their employer has great benefits.

Heartland Advisors President, Portfolio Manager and Founder Bill Nasgovitz said: “Our firm seeks to retain highly engaged professionals who are passionate about value investing as well as creating an outstanding service experience. Research has shown that a high correlation of employee engagement translates to high client engagement, which benefits clients and our business.”

Companies are selected by The Business Journal based on the results of an employee survey that gauges satisfaction with the workplace environment, including interaction with senior leadership, alignment with company goals and feeling valued as an employee.

“With this award, we celebrate the fact that our culture, opportunities and benefits are unique,” Jeanne Kolimaga, Human Resources Director. In a recent video posted to www.heartlandfunds.com, Jeanne explained to viewers that, “Our team values a workplace where building camaraderie and friendship amongst coworkers and clients are personally important, and our benefits are reflective of the quality of life we want our team members to have.”
